Teachers Prepared

On this page, enter the number of program completers by the subject area in which they were prepared to teach, and by their academic majors. Note that an individual can be counted in more than one academic major and subject area. For example, if an individual is prepared to teach Elementary Education and Mathematics, that individual should be counted in both subject areas. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major or subject area, you may leave the cell blank. Please use the "Other" category sparingly, if there is no similar subject area or academic major listed. In these cases, you should use the text box to describe the subject area(s) and/or the academic major(s) counted in the "Other" category.

If your IHE offers both traditional and alternative programs, be sure to enter the program completers in the appropriate reports. For the traditional report, provide only the program completers in traditional programs within the IHE. For the alternative report, provide only the program completers for the alternative programs within the IHE.

After entering the teachers prepared data, save the page using the floating save box at the bottom of the page.

If your program has no teachers prepared, check the box above and leave the table below blank (or clear responses already entered).

What are CIP codes? The Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP) provides a taxonomic scheme that supports the accurate tracking and reporting of fields of study and program completions activity. CIP was originally developed by the U.S. Department of Education's National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) in 1980, with revisions occurring in 1985, 1990, and 2000 (<https://nces.ed.gov/ipeds/cipcode/Default.aspx?y=55>).

Teachers Prepared by Academic Major

Please provide the number of teachers prepared by academic major for academic year 2024-25. For the purposes of this section, number prepared means the number of program completers. "Academic major" refers to the actual major(s) declared by the program completer. An individual can be counted in more than one academic major. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major, please leave that cell blank. (§205\(b\)\(1\)\(H\))

Please note that the list of majors includes several "Teacher Education" majors, as well as several noneducation majors. Please use care in entering your majors to ensure education-specific majors and non-education majors are counted correctly. For example, if an individual majored in Chemistry, that individual should be counted in the "Chemistry" academic major category rather than the "Teacher Education–Chemistry" category.

8. Describe your institution's most successful strategies in meeting the assurances listed above:

The Educator Preparation Program (EPP) at Southern Nazarene University continued its commitment to supporting candidates by providing comprehensive resources on local, state, and national teaching opportunities, with a focus on addressing Oklahoma's ongoing teacher shortages. Our School of Education website remains a key resource, offering up-to-date information on job openings, salary trends, certification pathways, and employment outlooks. Direct links to teaching positions in nearby districts, across Oklahoma, and beyond are readily available. Throughout the year, representatives from local school districts visited the campus to present employment information, share insights on human resources, and connect with student teachers. Many of our candidates transition directly into employment with these districts, reflecting the strong partnerships we have cultivated. Collaboration with P-12 partners remains integral to program development; community stakeholders serve actively on our professional education committees, contributing feedback and recommendations to ensure program relevance and quality. Program improvement continues to be informed by the systematic collection of feedback. Regular surveys of recent program completers provide insights into the effectiveness of instruction in classroom management, technology integration, subject content, and lesson planning. Our 10-year alumni survey tracks the achievements and recognitions of graduates, helping us maintain long-term engagement with our alumni network. Additionally, we participate in the state-administered survey process, gathering input from both our graduates and their employers regarding the program's impact and preparedness. The results are reviewed by our internal committees throughout the academic year and guide ongoing enhancements to the program. Our curriculum maintains a strong emphasis on practical teaching strategies, pedagogical theory, and content mastery. The capstone course, Professional Decision Making (PDM), continues to synthesize candidates' skills in instructional planning, classroom management, and assessment. Feedback from cooperating teachers and school administrators supplements formal evaluation measures, offering a broader view of candidate readiness. All candidates complete coursework and field experiences that prepare them to support students with disabilities. Requirements include successful completion of the Survey of the Exceptional Child course and related case study presentations. Additional coursework, such as Diversity in Education and a Diversity Awareness Essay, further prepares candidates to work effectively in diverse and inclusive classroom environments. Exposure to a variety of educational settings, including urban, suburban, and rural schools, remains a priority to equip candidates for service across a broad range of communities. We intentionally encourage candidates to pursue opportunities in high-need schools. Our mission, grounded in the belief that ALL students can learn, continues to guide the preparation of adequate, compassionate, and skilled educators for today's classrooms.

Assessment Pass Rates

The pass rates table is populated from files provided by the testing company or state. The table provides information on the performance of the students in your teacher preparation program on each teacher credential assessment used by your state. In cases where a student has taken a given assessment more than once, the highest score on that test is used. In the case of a teacher preparation program with fewer than 10 scores reported on any single initial teacher credential assessment during an academic year, the program shall collect and publish information with respect to an average pass rate and scaled score on each state credential assessment taken over a three-year period. (§205\(a\)\(1\)\(B\))

Please note that this page does not have an edit feature as the pass rates have already been through several rounds of verification. If you identify an error, please contact RTI's Title II Support Center and your testing company representative.

2. Provide a description of the evidence that your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction, and to use technology effectively to collect, manage, and analyze data in order to improve teaching and learning for the purpose of increasing student academic achievement. Include a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to use the principles of universal design for learning, as applicable. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the four elements listed above are not currently in place.

Southern Nazarene University Educator Preparation Program continued to prioritize the integration of technology across all coursework. Every teacher candidate completes the required Educational Technology course, where they build a professional portfolio showcasing their use of digital tools in teaching. This course also includes Google Classroom certification, which strengthens candidates' skills in managing technology-rich learning environments. Technology is embedded throughout the program, including the use of digital presentations, technology-supported lesson planning, and subject-specific software. All courses align with ISTE (International Society for Technology in Education) standards and are delivered through the Canvas learning platform. Faculty are trained to post materials, communicate with students, and provide video instruction for flexible learning. During the student teaching semester, candidates are evaluated on their ability to use technology effectively in real classroom settings. Both university supervisors and cooperating teachers conduct these evaluations. Candidates build a Growth Portfolio throughout their program, highlighting their progress with educational technology. Alumni surveys at the 1-, 3-, and 5-year marks show continued satisfaction with how well the program prepares them to use technology in their careers. Classrooms remain equipped with current technology, supported by the university's Instructional Technology department. As resources allow, the program is exploring the addition of an Educational Technology minor to expand student learning opportunities in this area.

Teacher Training

1. Provide a description of the activities that prepare general education teachers to:

a. Teach students with disabilities effectively

At Southern Nazarene University, all teacher candidates—regardless of major—are required to take Educational Psychology (ED 3223) as part of their educator preparation. This course includes focused assignments on understanding the learning needs of diverse learners, particularly students with disabilities. As part of the coursework, candidates conduct confidential interviews with P–12 students identified as having exceptionalities and served under an Individualized Education Plan (IEP). With appropriate permissions from parents and school personnel, these interviews form the basis of a case study, which is submitted without identifying student information. Candidates also complete Survey of the Exceptional Child (ED 4141), which deepens their understanding of disabilities and exceptionalities through reading current research and writing reports on specific learning needs. The course includes guest panels with special education teachers and requires candidates to observe a P–12 special education classroom. These experiences are followed by reflective reports that connect observations to practice. During the student teaching semester, all candidates participate in seminars on Diversity in Education and English Language Learner Strategies. These seminars incorporate case-based learning and conclude with reflective assignments, in which candidates propose inclusive strategies suitable for IEP planning. Each candidate also writes a Diversity Awareness Essay, analyzing demographic and accommodation data from their placement school. The essay focuses on one student with an Individualized Education Program (IEP) (without disclosing identifying details) and evaluates the effectiveness of the inclusion strategies used by the cooperating teacher. These essays are confidential and are assessed by the university supervisor using a standardized rubric. Data from these evaluations contribute to both candidate assessments and overall program review. This structured, multi-course approach ensures all teacher candidates graduate with the skills, awareness, and sensitivity needed to support students with exceptionalities in inclusive learning environments.

b. Participate as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

Teacher candidates in the Southern Nazarene University Educator Preparation Program were encouraged to observe Individualized Education Plan (IEP) meetings during their student teaching placements, provided they obtained proper consent from parents and supervising teachers. Observing the IEP process firsthand offers valuable insight into how these meetings are conducted and how collaborative decisions are made to support students with exceptionalities. In Survey of the Exceptional Child, candidates participate in panel discussions with practicing special education teachers and administrators. These sessions focus on the structure and legal requirements of IEP meetings, the roles of team members, and effective collaboration practices. Panels are scheduled at key points in the course to prepare candidates with practical knowledge before entering the classroom. In Educational Psychology, candidates complete a case study on a student with special needs. With proper permissions, this includes observing an IEP meeting and analyzing the student's support strategies. All documentation is submitted confidentially to protect student identity. The Diversity Awareness Essay, written during student teaching, requires candidates to reflect on one student in their classroom who has an Individualized Education Program (IEP). To complete this assignment, candidates must attend and observe the IEP meeting of the selected student, with the necessary permissions. Essays are assessed by university supervisors using a rubric, focusing on the candidate's understanding of the IEP process and their ability to evaluate the effectiveness of team collaboration. Seminars such as Diversity in Education and English Language Learner Strategies reinforce this learning with case studies, legal analysis, and guided discussions on the intersection of IEPs, classroom strategies, and federal special education laws. Together, these experiences ensure that candidates are well-prepared to support students with exceptionalities and make meaningful contributions to IEP teams in their future classrooms.

c. Effectively teach students who are limited English proficient.

All candidates in the Southern Nazarene University Educator Preparation Program are required to complete English Language Learner Strategies, a course taught by a practicing ELL/ESL teacher from a local public school. This course equips future educators with targeted instructional strategies for
