POLITICAL SCIENCE

ABOUT

The SNU Politics and Law program strives to equip students to be thoughtful and knowledgeable voices and actors in the political, economic and social debates of the day. It has a dedicated pre-law track for students wishing to pursue a legal career. It aims to train students to think analytically and write effectively, two skills which are essential for law school and beyond. It also has a political science track for those looking to work in any number of related fields, businesses and policy areas.

The program offers courses in the main areas of political science – American Government, Comparative Politics, International Relations, Intro to Law – and numerous electives that examine the political context in a variety of topics, such as sports and politics, nuclear weapons, East Asian politics, Constitutional law and American foreign policy.

"One of the main reasons I chose SNU was the intentionality of the professors. All of the profs want to get to know the students and help them succeed and I have already received so much help and support through the program. I feel as though I am a priority to faculty and it shows in every aspect of their teaching."
